Come learn about Smart Woman Securities while enjoying cupcakes at a well-deserved study break! Meet the members of the board and ask questions about joining next fall.

Smart Woman Securities (SWS) is a not-for-profit organization focused on investment education for undergraduate women. Through instructive seminars, mentoring initiatives, and meetings with successful investors such as Warren Buffett, SWS provides resources upon which women can build greater knowledge of the financial markets. By giving young women direct investment experience while still in college, SWS aims to empower a new generation of women investors for the future.

3. BE AN NSOP CONSENT FACILITATOR!

BE AN NSOP CONSENT FACILITATOR!

Want to help incoming first-years?

Need to move in early?

Wish to gain valuable knowledge and facilitation skills now and build experience for your future career?

Interested in talking about consent and sexual assault and being a part of our campuses anti-violence movement?

By facilitating important conversations with SVPRP about sexual assault, consent, risk reduction, and Columbia University resources, you can make a big difference to the class of 2013 and your Columbia community. Come volunteer during NSOP!

All you need:

- Some facilitation experience.
- Some familiarity with issues of sexual assault.
- Availability the week before move-in for facilitation training and NSOP.

Student leaders and men are especially encouraged to participate! And pass this invitation along to members of your student group and other interested students!

Contact Lana (od2131@columbia.edu) for an application and more information or call our offices at 212-854-4366 (RCAVSC 112 Hewitt Hall) or 212-854-3500 (SVPRP 301 Lerner Hall) with any questions that you may have. Completed applications can be returned via email to Lana or dropped off at our offices.
